

Photo courtesy of Will Zavala

Sat., Aug. 26 – Talk

You know his work, especially public sculptures like “Joy of Life,” on the East Liberty fountain, and “The Man,” on the University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public Health building. But odds are you know little about Virgil Cantini. The late artist worked in many media and helped establish the Department of Studio Arts at Pitt, where he taught for four decades. Today, Cantini’s daughter Lisa Cantini-Seguin and special guests lead a tour (starting in Highland Park) highlighting both his public artworks and his studio pieces. The tour, organized by Design Nation and Penhollows, takes place via restored vintage transit bus, and is followed by a reception. BO Tour: 2–4:30 p.m. Reception: 5–7:30 p.m. $30–60 (reception only: $40). www.design-nation.org